IS IT NOT REVOLUTIONARY?

There are two methods of revolutionizing a Government. One is by the violent assault of arms, as the result of long endured wrongs or the long entertainment by the people of the desire for a change in methods of government, that finally ripens into revolution and takes the form of force in order to substitute the new for the old. The other method is by peaceful agreement, according to democratic methods, to reform the organic act or compact under which individual rights are surrendered and community authority vested in agencies selected to administer governmental affairs.

Now the proposition to cover, cover and render subservient to a faction the judicial arm of the Government, while it is undertaken under the seeming sanction of law, is nevertheless such an abuse of power, that it is precisely as revolutionary as if actual force were employed to pull the Judges from the bench and put up the tools of the faction.

The question before this people now is whether they will sit quietly by and witness the consummation of this outrage. They have but one means of preventing it, and that is by the entry of such a protest that their servants, the legislators, who are in place to do the will of the people, may be instructed as to that judgment. While we have confidence in a majority of the membership of the law-making bodies, yet there should be a holding up of the hands of every man of them who resists the revolutionary plot. Already the press is voicing the protests of the people, and we anticipate still more vigorous and pronounced remonstrance.

The truth is, that beaten back by the anger of the people, the conspirators who propose to prostrate the judiciary at the feet of political knavery, have, by a flank movement, and under apparent cover of constitutional law, undertaken to undo the Supreme Bench for an ulterior purpose, by removal of two of the Justices on the plane of physical incapacity. This can be done only by legislative act, and raises the very serious question that it is not within the province of the Legislature under a call that does not specify that as one of the purposes of the session.

The constitutional provision declares it may be done by concurrent resolution. But it is warmly and honestly held that a concurrent resolution that goes beyond the expression of sentiment, or does more than voice a petition or a protest; that undertakes to do a definite thing, and that thing the reforming of an independent branch of the Government which is chosen by the people and not by the Legislature, is legislation. Of course it is not a bill, does not require its specific readings, nor does it need executive confirmation. But it is an extraordinary concurrence, two-thirds vote being required; an unusual demand; it affects the methods of government; it legislates out of office men chosen by the people at the ballot box; it tries judges and executes; it touches one of the foundation stones of the governmental superstructure, and the Legislature is but a part of the machinery of choosing a Federal officer, for a United States Senator is a Federal official. But in the other case it is contended, and with force, that the authority to act is derived from the State Constitution, relates to State government, affects the relation between the three independent arms of the sovereign State, and is legislation prescribed by the organic law and requiring a vote that would overrule a veto.

If then, the Houses proceed to do a thing at a session under a call in which it is not specified as one of the matters to be legislated upon, it raises the question if they do not seize authority, and do a revolutionary act.

Let us suppose the thing done, and the matter to come, as it will, before the Supreme Court, and that body to hold, as there is reason to believe it must under the law, that the act of removal was illegal; will we not have made progress toward Mexicanizing the State Government? In short, is there any future to the proposed action under present circumstances, that is not full of trouble and contention and ill?

POOR POLICY.

The friends of irrigation are in danger of losing ground by the methods of some of their zealous aids. There is no strength in vituperation, but those of whom we are solicitous for immediate and radical legislation denounce all as enemies who do not end hand-in-hand their remedies and the means they suggest for the attainment of the given system of irrigation. It is a poor policy to adopt. The truth is, the whole people are convinced of the need of irrigation and a comprehensive system for its operation, but they are by no means settled as to methods. Here we have journals from the very heart of the district most needing water artificially applied pronouncing against the methods proposed by the late Convention, and others just as emphatically favoring such plans. The "right" is being thought out, and will be thought out, and all this apparent contention will end upon a plane of common assent to a system that shall result from calm debate and careful examination. Where there is such wide divergence of opinion as to methods, such disagreement as to the ultimate end desirable, no man is wise to assume that he alone is in the right, and to denounce all who fail to concur with him as enemies of irrigation and of the State. Such hot-headed advocacy is simply boisterous, and ill becomes the debate of one of the most momentous questions that has been presented to this people.

OUR FRUITS AT THE EAST.

It is very gratifying to learn that California fruit is arriving at the East in such fine condition. The dispatches yesterday announced that there is now in the Atlantic cities a fine display in fruit-stalls and in the markets of our peers, plums and peaches, and that they command ready retail sale. The new impetus given to the fruit-forwarding business by the organizations of fruit-growers and shippers is developing a new demand for our fruits at the East. The old policy was limited shipment, high prices, and a necessarily confined clientele. The new economy introduces our fruits where they were before unknown and places them within the reach of people who could not before indulge in them. Those who should be, and will be, further advancement upon this line. Our possibilities in the direction of an Eastern fruit market will not be developed until California fruit is easily obtainable generally at all prominent Eastern points, and hundreds of lesser importance. We place no trust in the fear of overdoing this business, or of bringing our fruits into damaging competition with each other. The horticultural industry of California is but in its infancy; it will be early a chief source of prosperity, and we believe that it will be a permanent one. Our seasons are such that we can command a demand among the millions of the East for our fruits at a time when the products of the Atlantic slope cannot be in the field. From a luxury our fruit supply will develop into a necessity, and with it our fruit development will keep pace.

Let it be clearly understood that the present assault upon the Supreme Court is not to conserve public interests. It is to accomplish the purpose of a scheme to reverse a given ruling of the Court. All the disfavors that are attempted to conceal it are transparent, and only make the damning plot to break down the independence of the judiciary the more horrid in its realization.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

A Special Call—Plain Words.

The General Committee on Sacramento Day (G. A. R.) is fearful that there will be trouble about lodging the guests. But they ought to be no trouble. It is now certain that we will have a large number of visitors two thousand. Those from the bay citizenship of the East. The majority are here to “spy out land,” with a view to carrying the war into the West. The Committee’s honor is at stake in this matter of entertainment. The hotel will be full and more, and the G. A. R. guest has been promised that the latch string of our doors shall hang out. Unfortunate soldiers who have come to us from the Domestic Hospital Committee have not acted, and not canvassed their districts. Others have done what is right, but will be pleased.

Major Hubbard is in San Fran, and his friends have called in guests for the night, and the most of them give breakfast also. What is wanted now, is that every one yet called on shall send at once to A. N. Buchanan at headquarters 508 J street, a note saying he will furnish breakfast, or if breakfast will not be furnished.

Thus the committee can inform guests what to expect, and all will be pleasant. Major Hubbard is in San Fran, and his friends have called in guests for the night, and the most of them give breakfast also. This is a matter of supreme importance to our town. Every man and woman in it ought to feel how much it may mean for us to have a good breakfast, or a “shake-down” or the “carpet” for ourselves for one night, that our guests who sleep on straw and ate hard tack while fighting our paper to take just as much as possible, and report if the beds are single or double, that proper adjustments of guest may be made, and no embarrassing confusion result. We have some of the committees that have not canvassed their districts ought to be ashamed of themselves if they delay an hour longer to go to work. There is no time for any more dilly-dallying.

City Trustees.

The Board of City Trustees met in regular session at 10 a. m. yesterday; all the men here present.

W. C. Wolf, chief engineer of the water works, reported that the pumps had worked unceasingly every minute of the past week, and had poured into the mains sixtions and dears to the amount of $1,350,000 gallons.

Harbormaster N. A. Kidder reported for July 10, 1863, for steamboats. Total col- lections, $45.

A majority of the property holders on P street, between Second and Third streets, petition to have that block graded and gravelled, as the Street Committee with power to do.

Philip Rumbie, Poundmaster, reported his scalping exploits for July as follows: Impounded 2 horses, 7 cows and 55 dogs. All but later 40 were killed and scalped. All the remaining animals were redeemed. Collections, $30.

Chief of Police H. F. Dillon reports for July as follows: Arrests 258; lodgers, 34; 1,314 persons, 6.

The electric light was at Fifteenth and H streets seems to be very annoying to the residents of that locality. They petition the Board as follows:

To the Trustees of the City of Sacramento—Gentlemen: We, the citizens of Sacramento, owning property and residing in the vicinity of Fifteenth and H streets, respectfully request the early removal of the electric light located at the northwest corner of the above-named streets, as it is now in a state of constant nuisance while in use, and at all times unsightly, dangerous, and a positive and very serious impediment to our public convenience.

Referred to the Street Commissioner, with power to act.

After allowing a number of bills the Board adjourned.

Police Court.

In the Police Court yesterday the cases of Anna Stoltz and C. Van Meyhoff, charged with battery upon each other, were set for hearing to-morrow.... Cadwalader Jones and Mrs. Russell were tried for petit larceny, and discharged. The order for trial was suspended until the 20th....

The case of Jasper Drake, charged with battery was continued until the 7th.... Ed. Roamer was convicted of disturbing the peace until the 20th.... The case of Jesse Wadde, for disturbing the peace, was continued until the 7th.... John Merriman, arrested for having been drunk, and William C. Smith, charged with disorderly conduct, were fined $10....

The case of Jasper Drake, charged with battery was continued until the 7th.... J. N. McCarthy's case of disturbing the peace went over until the 7th.... Ed. Roamer was convicted of disturbing the peace until the 20th.... The case of Jessie Wadde, for disturbing the peace, was continued until the 7th.... John Merriman, arrested for having been drunk, and William C. Smith, charged with disorderly conduct, were fined $10....

The following bills were audited and allowed: Styling Publishing Company, $100; Mr. S. W. Miller, $24; Mrs. W. C. Lewis, $30; George Martin, $15; Mrs. Lawler, $30; E. Alsp & Co., rent of theater, $40; Total, $101.

Board of Supervisors.

The Board met yesterday, all the members present. Minutes of July 5th and 15th read and approved.

On motion, it was ordered that M. Judge, Overseer of Road District No. 2, be and he is hereby instructed and directed to remove so much of the road in the State highway between the lands of Lena Hartman, and John Schandony, heretofore declared a public highway, and for which John Schandony was paid $100 for the land, as far as the same lay in his district.

For hospital supplies were opened and referred to the Committee on Contracts, which subsequently reported in favor of awarding the contract for groceries to D. W. Johnson, and the same was voted to be given to him. Frank Miller and Thomas Traynor were examined on a charge of attempting to rob a man at Second and J streets early Sunday morning, and were held to answer in $1,000 bail each.

Almost a Serious Accident.

As Joseph Hahn was driving from the depot through Second street last evening, after dark, he ran over a pile of cobble stones in the street opposite the store of Hall, Luhns & Co., between I and J. Mr. Hahn and his wife were thrown violently from the vehicle to the pavement, and the horse, too, was thrown. He sprained a lively hanaway with his little son, who was only left in the buggy. The horse was caught at Second and J streets, and his wife was uninjured. Mr. Hahn and his wife escaped injury, and the horse they were particularly taken care of, and their clothing badly torn and soiled.

The street at that point is being repaired by the Street Commissioners, and the latter are to lay out a new sidewalk. The place, which says that in such cases a light lantern shall be hung out from sunset till daylight, and fixes a penalty for its non-observance, which is one of not less than $500 to those who do not observe it, and need in the city jail not less than two months nor more than twenty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Mr. Hahn certainly can collect from the city any damages sustained.

Is the City Sold Out?

EDS. RECORD UNION: Those who pay taxes furnish the money to pay the contracts of street sprinklers. These men knew what they contracted to do. No one forced them to take the job. They are prompt to get their money all the same. The city fathers are to blame for the appearance of the war and peace, and the appearance was, with wild cheers and the “Hallelujah.”

Upon arriving at Rocklin a special car, from San Francisco, bearing the G. A. R. Committee of Reception, was attached to the train, carrying the people to the depot through Second street, and evinced a very large concourse of people who were anxious to see the General. After the departure of the Committee, the train went to the depot, where the people gathered to see the General. He spoke of California as the most delightful heritage given by God to man—grand in all its parts and resources, and in all its power to develop and expand.

He expressed the warmest appreciation for the generous reception he and those with him had received, and said he was delighted to meet the people of the Golden State. He said he had proved to themselves in times of war and peace, by their loyalty and this great-heartedness and generosity, to the worthy of the heritage they enjoyed.

At the close of his remarks deafening cheers were given and cries of “Good! good!” and repeated “tigers.” An effort then made to return to his car, and after a short interval he again stepped out.

He crossed the warmest appreciation for the generous reception he and those with him had received, and said he was delighted to meet the people of the Golden State. He said he had proved to themselves in times of war and peace, by their loyalty and this great-heartedness and generosity, to the worthy of the heritage they enjoyed.

Dr. C. McLane's—The Caledonian Club tendered John McLane, of Walnut Grove, a raid Sunday evening upon Sacramento, and arrested Al Sam the proprietor, and Thomas Wiley, a white man who was “dealing” at the time. The officer captured the entire “launder,” and also about $170 in money. Wiley says that during the confusion comment upon the stolen from the table. The prisoners were brought to the County Jail yesterday afternoon, and presently gave cash bail in the sum of $75 each, to their release in the morning. At 10 a. m. to-day, it was fortunate for the Constable that Al Sam is not a desperate Celestial, as he neglected to search him before leaving Courtland, and when he was searched at the County Jail he proved to have a big revolver in his belt.

During his service he received very severe wounds, but is now a picture of splendid health. He is fond of hunting and shooting, and is well known among the superior people. Miss Bella Moore, the “star” warden in favor. She is a handsome young woman; she sings pleasantly and feelingly and in a strong mezzo-soprano; she dances well, and is a good actress.

There are still two trains to arrive from the East, coming to-day, and that will close the race between the city and San Fran. Ogden.

The railroads have convened to meet the arrival of the trains, and the passengers are to be transported in a safe and comfortable manner.

The reception of the new Board of Education was held yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Golden Eagle.

There was a good attendance last night, to see what sort of timber composed the newly formed troupe that presented itself for public favor.

There was not a familiar face behind the footlights. It was a company of the sons of fairly good families in the city, with three superior people. Miss Bella Moore, the “star” warden in favor. She is a handsome young woman; she sings pleasantly and feelingly and in a strong mezzo-soprano; she dances well, and is a good actress.

There is a little reserve as yet, that will give place to more to-morrow.

It is the intention of the company to remain in the city for a week, and to give a series of performances.
